

Love Where You Work

Adventist Health is a faith-based, non-profit healthcare system with a strong commitment to helping our communities achieve optimal health. Building on this rich history, Seventh-day Adventists now operate one of the largest not-for-profit health care systems in the world, with more than 650 facilities worldwide. The Adventist Health hospitals in the Central Valley are located in Hanford, Selma, Reedley and Tulare.

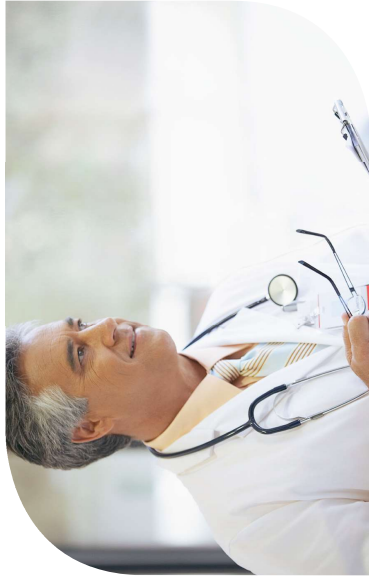

Our award winning organization takes pride in bringing new and innovative care and services to our region while preserving the traditions of patient-centered care that have characterized our philosophy for more than 90 years. We think Adventist Health is an excellent place to work – but don't take it from us! Here are some testimonials from current employees who love where they work!

"I was blown away by the growth we experienced in 2015. Our organization is doing awesome!" – Nathan

"It was three years ago that I made one of the best decisions of my life, to join the Adventist Health team. I have seen so much growth and future potential in this organization, it is incredible. I am very thankful that I am in a job where I am free to share God's love openly." – Robert

"I enjoy working with people that truly care about me. Being able to have a good work environment makes all the difference when doing your job." – Kelsey

"Working for Adventist Health has been life changing. I love the fact that my co-workers have been really friendly and helpful. I love working for patients and I know I am in the right place. I really enjoy what I do." – Tamara

Together inspired™

Healthcare in Central California

Adventist Health operates four hospitals in Hanford, Selma, Reedley and Tulare as well as in roughly 50 rural healthcare medical offices. Adventist Health is constantly expanding our rural health opportunities by opening medical offices throughout the San Joaquin Valley.

Adventist Health Hanford

Adventist Health Selma

Adventist Health Reedley

Adventist Health Tulare