State-of-the-Art Communication
Tracking, Approval, and Retention

With debt collection comes compliance and accountability. At a moment's notice, debt collection communications could be disputed, and you need an easy and reliable way to access your consumer's information. RevSpring End-to-End makes this possible.

RevSpring End-to-End easily accesses and tracks the print and delivery status of each communication, including options for retention and approval.

RevSpring's End-to-End platform is a single solution that tracks and maintains all collection communications and can even provide an exact view of the communication in one easy-to-access location. It is a valuable tool to help protect you if disputes arise because it gives you complete transparency when a document was created, mailed, and delivered or when a file was emailed, texted, received, and opened.

Easily Access Archived Information

RevSpring End-to-End has an optional long-term storage and retrieval solution built into the platform. This configurable solution, called RevSpring Retrieve, is designed to meet your record retention needs. Whether you're complying with the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau Regulation F or more restrictive state compliance laws, the retrieve feature can meet the ever-changing record retention regulatory environment by retaining an exact PDF view of the communication.

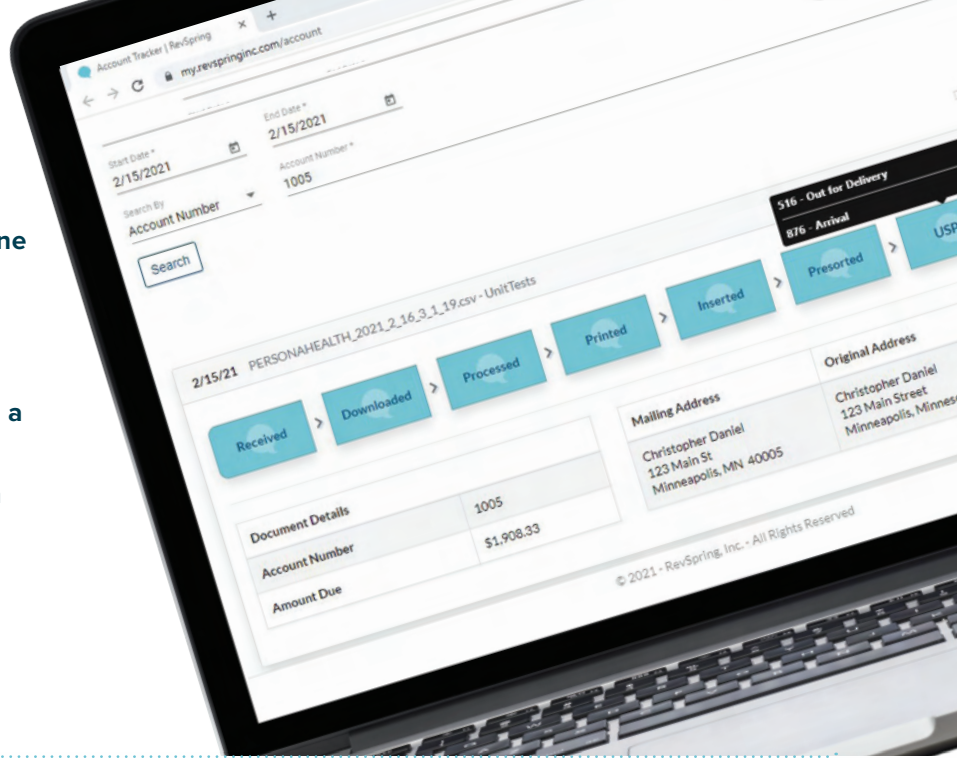

Accessing the information in RevSpring Retrieve is effortless. You can search on an account number, a name, or an email address and view all communications pertaining to a consumer—giving you complete insight into all prior communications.
