Plant size and quality truly set Martinez Orchards apart. In the nursery row, appropriate spacing allows cuttings to develop naturally without excessive fertilization. Proper crop and field rotation eliminate the need for soil fumigation. In the greenhouse, an excellent soil media and potting system along with underground heat develop robust green growing plants ready to go at delivery. These uncompromised plants are consistently fuller and taller in both diameter and in top growth.

Plant size and quality are meaningless if the plant material doesn't start out as clean as possible. Ask about our extensive virus testing program!
